

Council requests gaming ordinance

BY TRACI BONNEY
Bay St. Louis's proposed zoning ordinance amendment resolution will not come up for an official City Council vote until March 9.
The Council unanimously passed a motion to table the proposal for 30 days to allow further study, then voted (also unanimously) to authorize gaming attorney Donald Rafferty to draw up a citywide gaming ordinance that encompasses all comments and concerns voiced by officials and the public over the last 14 months.

Both motions were initiated by John Wilkerson, who stated, "What I'm asking from Mr. Rafferty is something this council can look at and see that we cover all bases and all concerns. After last night's public hearing, I have my reservations, and that's the reason for my motion."
After the two motions were passed, the Council opened the public forum. Marilyn Smith presented the councilmen with copies of a petition and read the remarks that preceded the names.

Smith, who said she was speaking on behalf of several members of the black community, questioned the objections to the proposed Mardi Gras Casino development site at the Bay bridge.
She stated, "Is the idea that some of our black citizenry might work and/or gamble at the Bay bridge beachfront site a reason for so much objection? Is the idea that our community will grow, prosper and have a sound economic base a reason for objection?

"We heard many opponents of the proposed Bay bridge site say over and over that the beauty of the area will be destroyed and the view endangered. The beauty and view are already destroyed and endangered. What is more despicable than (1) the Pete Fountain property as it looks now; (2) the monstrous Bay bridge that the

Frilot, Weidman remain at odds

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Waveland's first meeting in February ended with an outburst by Mayor Stella Frilot directed towards Ward 4 Alderman Stan Weidman.
Weidman repeatedly questioned Frilot on various actions and issues throughout the meeting. The mayor responded in anger to a personal remark by Weidman.
Ward 1 Alderman Barbara Rappold stopped Weidman from responding, calling for adjournment, which was immediately seconded and approved.
Earlier in the meeting, Weidman voiced the only "no" vote on the minutes, for not including comments he requested recorded; on the bills, no reason given;
—on payment for emergency sewer repairs to the city's main lift station, citing the city's need for spare pumps for all stations;

—on the cutting down of an oak tree which was said to be damaging Hubbard's Hardware Store on Nicholson Avenue, citing the need for the city building inspector to verify the damage and propose alternative solutions;
—on the rescinding of a motion by Ward 3 Alderman Curtis Colson. The motion asked that the city engineer be instructed to evaluate how overhanging trees on Market Street were to be trimmed and how settling at the corner of Central Avenue and Farrar Street could be repaired.
Frilot said, "You do realize you are asking for someone else to go out and do something the city is already paying one man to do?"

Zoning hearing

Gaming friends, foes revisit issues

BY TRACI BONNEY
A Bay St. Louis City Council public hearing Monday drew 325 people, about 60 speakers, and relatively few comments about the subject of the meeting.

Although the hearing was held to obtain public comment about a proposed city zoning ordinance amendment that would establish zoning and guidelines suitable for dockside gambling facilities on the water bottomlands adjacent to the Pete Fountain property, most of the remarks made concerned Mardi Gras Casino's plans to develop that property, more commonly referred to as the "Bay bridge site."

Many of the speakers who made comments relevant to the zoning proposal said they believe the resolution is not specific enough. One person said the proposal had no teeth in it.
Tad Black questioned some of the legal aspects, asking if it will take a 4-1 vote or a 3-2 vote by the Council to pass the resolution, and if all the appropriate regulations have been followed

County garbage system concerns local residents

BY TRACI BONNEY
Changes in the county's garbage/trash collection system have some area residents concerned.

Among them are members of the Jourdan River Shores subdivision, represented at Monday's board of supervisors meeting by Ray Cowie.
Cowie, president of the subdivision's property owners association, told the supervisors the Jourdan River Shores POA members are dissatisfied with the county's decision to discontinue trash collection. He said the only services the subdivision will receive from the county now are street maintenance and sheriff's department protection.

The board told Cowie the county is not closing down the convenience centers, but only removing the open top dumpsters located around the county.

Supervisor Robert Peterson assured Cowie the North Barn convenience center will continue to operate, and reminded him that the center is only three or four miles from the subdivision.

Supervisor Howard Lizana added his comments, explaining that the county is removing the open top dumpsters located in the subdivision because they are too expensive a method of trash collection.
"With those open tops, the garbage gets wet every time it rains," he said. "The garbage just soaks up all that water, and water weighs about seven pounds per gallon. We're charged for each ton of garbage we haul, so a good rain can real-

FmHA project updated

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Ray Eaton, Waveland's city planner, reported to the board Tuesday that the city's newest well site is 90 percent complete and the sewer extension project, 30-35 percent complete.

Eaton explained a $33,487 change order to the FmHA sewer and water extension project increasing the total GM&R Construction contract to $812,358.

Along with actual usage changes and unplanned breaks in lines, the uniform paving of Nicholson Avenue from the center line to the road edge was included in the renegotiated project cost.

Eaton said the project still has $75,000 in contingency which can be used later for other improvements and problems that may arise between now and August.

Eaton complimented utilities superintendent Michael Barnes for his ideas for changes on lift stations panels which saved the city a few thousand dollars.
The board approved the change order.

Eaton mentioned an earlier approved payment by the board for emergency repairs to the Old Spanish Trail and Nicholson Avenue lift station would be replaced through the FmHA money back into the city budget.

He added the cost for emergency repairs to the city's main lift station was more than $6,000. Two pumps were replaced at a cost of $2,166 each.

The board approved the appointment of Keith Mitchell as city building-inspector/official, replacing Emile Henley, who will retire Friday.

It has been two years since you left us to journey to your heavenly home.

God wanted you near. Now we're left alone. You left before we could hug you and tell you good-bye.

A million times we needed you.

A million times we've cried. A heart of gold stopped beating.

Smiling eyes closed to rest. God breaks our heart.

To prove to us He only takes the best.

A place is vacant in our home, Which no one can fill.

Our tears come from missing you, and sorrow.

Weidman also voted against the appointment of Keith Mitchell as building official/inspector. Mitchell, a former member of the city's zoning and planning commission, will replace retiring inspector Emile Henley.

Weidman, saying his vote held no reflection upon Mitchell's ability, questioned the lack of specific job description allotted the board prior to appointment ratification.

"For us to sit here and blindly say 'yes' and ratify an appointment, we are not taking our duty seriously."

Rappold quickly fired back, "I take my duty very seriously, Stan."

Colson attempted to explain that should Weidman wish to know what a job pays, he only need refer to the monthly docket.

Weidman questioned Frilot about the appointment of Dr. H. L. LeBourgeois as animal shelter veterinarian during the city's last January meeting.

Frilot said the city's bonding company suggested the veterinarian, who has served Waveland for 14 years, be officially appointed to avoid possible legal ramifications.

She added there no salary was set, no contract existed and LeBourgeois provides services only.

Weidman returned to the issue of supplying details to the board "before we make appointments."

Frilot answered, "We do not make appointments. The mayor makes appointments."

According to Lizana, projected figures show that the county will be more than $100,000 in debt by the end of the fiscal year if open top dumpsters continue to be used.

"We don't want to end up like Stone County," he commented, "so we have to do something to cut expenses."

In addition, the supervisors told Cowie, the dumpsters are an easy target for abuse, receiving trash from people who don't live in the subdivision.

Lizana gave Cowie a copy of the financial projections and told him to show the figures to the Jourdan River Shores residents. Road superintendent Sam Cuevas gave Cowie a copy of a press release explaining what the county plans to do.

According to the press release, the Heron Bay, Neacise

Crossing and Leetown collection sites will be closed prior to February 15, and all open top containers at all convenience centers will be removed.

Only household garbage will be accepted at the remaining sites: South Barn, Washington and Chapman, North Maintenance (Hwy. 43), and North County. Both household garbage and trash will be accepted at the Standard and Pearlington trash sites.

Compactors for household garbage only will be placed at the South Barn, Standard landfill and a site to be determined in the northern part of the county.

All sites will be manned and open seven days a week. All sites except Standard will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Standard will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. or dark.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The closing of three convenience (garbage, trash) sites scheduled for February 15 concerns many of the county's residents.

Board of supervisor members cite the rising cost of disposal charges as the main reason.

It seems the open containers also collect a lot of moisture, and you know we have our share of rain, and this increases the weight of the garbage and trash.

Household garbage will continue to be collected at the Pearlington dump, Washington and Chapman streets, and North Maintenance Barn on Highway 43. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. seven days a week.

Compactors have been ordered for the Standard dump, South Barn, and the North county site. These are to be in operation as soon as the equipment arrives and is in place.

All county trash will now have to be brought to either the Pearlington or Standard dumps.

It is hoped that all citizens will note the changes in the garbage and trash collection sites which will be changing on February 15.

We must remember, too, the slogan Litter Free by '93, which has been adopted by the Chamber of Commerce.

The time is now to begin our task of making our county a more litter free community.

I have to offer congratulations to one of my friends and classmates of many years ago at St. Stanislaus, from across the Bay, Frank Wittmann.

Frank was recently honored by the National Catholic Educational Association (NCEA).

Wittmann, a resident of Pass Christian, received the NCEA's Catholic Elementary School Distinguished Graduate Award.

Frank is a graduate of St. Joseph Elementary in the Pass, now St. Paul Catholic School, and has been involved in the school in many capacities over the years.

Congratulations, Frank. By the way, you and I and about 48 others should not forget the big 40th coming up next year.

There will be a Chamber Pot on Monday, Feb. 10, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., Civic Center, Longfellow Road.

This will be a Po-Boy affair and is sponsored by Mary's Eatery.

I know Mary's can really fix some good po-boys, and I will be looking forward to next Monday.

The event is open to chamber members and guests. If you have one, don't forget to bring your business card.

A couple weeks ago I had an opportunity to chat with three young visitors from Moscow, Russia. Two were age 12 and the other 15.

They were part of a group of 20 from Moscow attending the annual checker tourney in Petal.

Two of the three were guests of Dr. and Mrs. James Mahler and the other of Mr. and Mrs. David Dorn and their children.

The trio appeared to really be enjoying themselves in America and were interesting to talk to.

It appeared the group was really impressed with America. They arrived by plane in New York and came to the Coast via bus, so they got to see a lot of sights along the way.

I understand they had a ball shopping, as in their homeland many stores have empty shelves.

We sometimes think about how hard we have it, and this may be true, but compared to whom?

America is still the greatest country in the world.

VANDALIZED SIGNS CAN CAUSE ACCIDENTS OR EVEN DEATH

No one wants to be responsible for injury to a motorist...but that's what can happen when highway signs are vandalized or destroyed. Motorists depend on road signs to safely drive the highways. In addition, it costs taxpayers a great deal of money to repair or replace these vandalized signs. Be a responsible citizen and don't vandalize highway signs. You could be instrumental in saving a motorist from injury or even death. Don't vandalize, please!

Hancock Bank has generated jobs, stimulated economy

Dear Editor,

On Monday evening, Feb. 3, I, along with several friends and neighbors, attended the public hearing on a proposed zoning change for the beachfront residential area of Bay St. Louis.

The city council was extremely generous in allowing 75 citizens (although not all residents of Bay St. Louis or the affected area) to make a presentation before them, either pro or con to the amendment.

I did not choose to speak, nor do I live in the area discussed that evening. However, my husband and I have owned a home on Felicite Street for 22 years, which is in close proximity to the Bay Cove Marina gaming site.

While I have no personal objection to gambling, I do have and always have had a strong objection to the piece-meal style of zoning that has gone on in Bay St. Louis for years. It will eventually leave us with no purely residential neighborhoods to have homes and raise families.

The most disturbing statement or question I heard during the entire meeting concerned jobs. A speaker promoting gambling asked, "What have any of the beachfront property owners ever done for the city of Bay St. Louis?"

I would like the opportunity to give that person just one example. Leo Seal, a resident of the area, who proposed for the zoning change, and his father before him, have since 1899 employed more people in this community than that gambling promoter will ever become acquainted with.

Presently the Hancock Bank itself employs close to 60 people in Hancock County. To his credit, Mr. Seal's establishment offers its employees not only sound employment, but benefits.

Through the financing of many businesses over the years, Hancock Bank makes employment possible for many others. Additionally, the Hancock Bank makes the building of homes and businesses (jobs) and the purchase of anything from automobiles to educational loans possible for the citizens of Bay St. Louis.

These are only a few examples of the opportunities the Seal family and Hancock Bank have made available to this community for nearly a century now. I might add that when you do business with Hancock Bank, you have something to show for the money you have spent. This is not always the case when you leave a gambling establishment.

In closing, I would not want anyone to be misled to think that gambling promoters are the first people to come to Hancock County and offer anyone a job!

Sincerely,
Lana Noonan

Dear IRS...

I was a'sittin' in my chair, all rested and relaxus;
Along came the mailman with a bill for my taxus.

I got so excited, I lost my noodle;
Tripped over the rug, fell over my poodle.

I got up slowly, to my desk I did wend;
Opened the drawer, took out my pen.

Dear IRS, the writin did say;
You sent me a bill, you ruined my day.

You are so mean and wicked;
Sendin that letter just wasn't cricket.

When I saw how much was those taxus;

I nearly got apoplexus.
I felt so bad, I sure was a'hurtin;

With my death I was a'flirtin.
If I had a gun I'd fill you with lead;

You'd take me to prison and fry me dead.

Then I'd sit in my tomb all rested and relaxus;

I'd shout to the world, to hell with my taxus.

But you'd get the last laugh, it's sad to relate;

You'd send me a bill, care of my estate.

Time to be adults

The Bay St. Louis City Council's public hearing Monday night at the Bay High Auditorium could be more accurately described as a huge sandbox fight between several dozen children.

The Council called the hearing to get public input on a zoning amendment proposal, not to hear the same rhetoric — both for and against dockside gaming in general and the Bay bridge site in particular — that has cluttered meetings for the past year or so.

The behavior exhibited at Monday's meeting was childish and rude. For example: The moderator is the only person charged with timing the speakers, not the audience. "Time!" was continually shouted by persons not wishing to hear particular comments.

Please, good residents of Bay St. Louis, let's be adults at future meetings. Here's what you can do to help:

1. Write out your remarks before the meeting and time yourself on them, since you will be confined to three minutes to make your point.

2. Keep your remarks to the subject at hand. The Council already knows your objections to or support of dockside gambling and has noted them. Repeating them every time you stand up to speak will only deafen the officials' ears to you.

3. Hold your temper in check during the meeting and treat those speaking as you would wish to be treated when you speak — with respect and courtesy.

In short, next time there's a meeting, bring only your good manners and relevant comments.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

South Mississippi will survive defense cuts

During President Bush's State of Union Address, our nation's Chief Executive proposed cutting several of the nation's defense programs. The proposed cuts are expected to take place over the next six years and save $50 billion in defense spending.

While the cuts are substantial, I am pleased to say South Mississippians will weather this most recent round of defense cuts. Most of the cuts the president has proposed are the nuclear weapons programs, the Seawolf submarine program, the Block III tank program and the B-2 bomber.

A note should be made though that these cuts are merely the president's proposals and must be passed by the Congress if they are to be enacted.

Any time you have a military drawdown, Congress and the administration are going to look for ways to save money. Therefore, this new interest in Department of Defense saving makes my job on the House Armed Services Committee, the Procurement subcommittee and the Seapower subcommittee much more important.

In the future, the United States will have fewer military installations, reduced troop strength and the Department of Defense will seek fewer defense contracts. Now more than ever, I have to make sure that these cuts aren't at the expense of South Mississippi jobs or our nation's security. Our military installations and shipyards play a vital role in our nation's defense, and even during this round of cuts these facilities must remain open. Furthermore, Mississippi's entire Congressional delegation must also be on the lookout now that these cuts are in the works.

For example, just days before the President's State of the Union Address, defense spending analysts in Washington released a list of weapons programs that were slated to get the administration's budget ax.

Included in that list was a group of destroyers being built by Ingalls Shipbuilding, the state's largest private employer. The Arleigh Burke-class destroyers had been earmarked in the report as one of many weapons systems on the way to the chopping block.

However, this observation by defense analysts was not only wrong, it was unfounded. I assure you, the Pentagon's 1993 budget does include four more guided-missile destroyers to be built for the Navy.

Moreover, as a member of the House Armed Services Committee, I have been assured that current funding for the Aegis destroyer program at Ingalls will remain intact. This comes as no surprise, considering South Mississippians' outstanding performance in building some of the finest ships now plying the world's oceans.

How do you feel about the decline of the full-service gasoline station?

"I feel it is a good thing for them to go to self-serve if it more profitable for the companies, although it will be an inconvenience for the patrons."

Perre Quintini

"I think it is disastrous. If my car doesn't start, I need someone to help me, and simple things like oil changes and other things performed at a full-service station will no longer be available. I have always patronized manned stations for the service they offer."

Bernice Turner

"I think it's a bad thing for the community. Most big cities have full-service stations. It will hurt the rural areas more."

Donald Mauffray selected as county Veteran Services Officer

BY TRACI BONNEY
Donald Mauffray was approved by the board of supervisors Monday as the county's new Veteran Services Officer. Mauffray was appointed to the post vacated by Paul Moody in January. Seven service organizations were involved in Mauffray's selection from among the 23 applicants and his recommendation to the supervisors. Supervisor board president Mike Ladner filled the post until Mauffray was hired. The Veterans Service Officer helps military veterans, their spouses or dependents in obtaining whatever services or benefits are due them. Last year, the Veterans Service Office assisted 4,650 veterans and widows in Hancock County. More than $4 million in veterans pensions were paid in the county in 1991. Mauffray said, "I feel honored to have been picked from 23 applicants. I'm going to give it my best shot, and work my hardest to provide the service the veterans of our county deserve. I'll do my best to continue the fine work done by my predecessor." Mauffray, discharged from the Army in 1947 as a medical technician sergeant, worked five years as office manager of Hancock General Hospital, two years as a GED program teacher and six years as a psychiatric nursing assistant at the VA Hospital in Gulfport. Born and reared in Fenton, he attended Kiln Consolidated, Centerville High School and St. Joseph College. He also attended Tulane University. His civic associations include past president, Hancock County Chapter 1114 of the American Association of Retired People (AARP); commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 3253, Bay St. Louis; past chaplain and adjutant of Kiln Memorial VFRW Post 6285; member of Ushers Society of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church; service officer and past color guard of the Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray Post 77 of the American Legion, Waveland. He and his wife, the former Charlotte Fletcher Nelson of Warrenton, Va., reside in Bay St. Louis.

concerning publication and number of days between publication of the hearing and the holding of the hearing. More than half of those who spoke stated their opposition to the Bay bridge site. Geraldine Lang questioned the width of the beach and the potential traffic flow. She reminded those present of the traffic congestion problems in past years when the Crab Festival was held next to the highway in that area. Anita Lamb said her concern is for her grandchildren, who currently can come and go as they please in the beachfront/downtown area.

She also questioned the 700 jobs Don Tyler has claimed are at risk if the casino isn't developed at the bridge site. "I think about the 700 jobs that are supposedly at risk; 700 jobs with a more established firm or business would be something to really look forward to. Seven hundred jobs at minimum wage, with probably no benefits, is not the kind of industry or business that we want in Bay St. Louis." Pro-gaming speakers debated that view, saying that minimum wage is better than no wage. Several speakers talked about the beauty and cultural heritage of the beachfront area. All the North Beach Blvd. residents who spoke said they object to a casino at the bridge site. Rev. Dwyne Mounger, who has in the past voiced several arguments against gambling in general, spoke of the area's beauty and historic value, and told the Council, "Mr. Mayor and councilmen, are you going to roll the dice on that and throw it away? I hope and pray you don't." Pro-gaming speakers were just as passionate in their comments as were those opposed to the bridge site. Billy Lady, who spoke in his capacity as president of the Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association, urged the Council to allow Mardi Gras to develop the bridge site. He further maintained that the county needs four dockside gaming facilities to truly reap the financial benefits of legalized gambling. Thyla Rogers called dockside gambling "manna from heaven" and painted a vivid picture of the poverty she sees on a daily basis in her volunteer work with the Waveland Animal Shelter. Jim Henrie, another proponent, said he wanted to "explode the three great myths of our time": 1. The issue is gambling — Henrie contended that the issue is a small group of people opposed to change of any sort. 2. With gambling come societal diseases — He said those are not a spinoff of gambling, but of unemployment and underemployment. 3. Gambling will never come to Bay St. Louis — "Well, hang on folks, because it will come, and it will be here this year." Sherman Necaise said he favors the Mardi Gras site, and argued with the idea that minimum wage jobs are not what the county needs. "Half a loaf is better than none," he said. Retired attorney Cornelius Ladner said you'll never catch him in a casino, but he is in favor of jobs, however they come or wherever they are. Two speakers even attempted to air their gripes against certain gaming opponents, but Council chairman Jim Rutherford cut them off.

that we can possibly do it," Lambert commented. Bay Cove's gaming license application was filed in September, while Mardi Gras' was filed in June. Lambert said that by the Gaming Commission's timetable, Mardi Gras' license will most likely be ready first, but the Bay Cove facility will be in place first. Torguson said the Gaming Commission has been told of the impending change.

The Bay High Tigers varsity basketball team was defeated by the Poplarville Hornets 76-69 Tuesday night.

"As a team, we played well. We just could not turn Poplarville's mistakes into scoring opportunities," said coach Mark Collins.

"In the second period we shot poorly, and that was the one reason for our loss."

Tripp Whavers led scoring for the Tigers with 19 points, followed by Russell Fairconnetue with 13; James Ricks, 11; Travis Collins, 7; Kevin Hodges, 7; Tristan Robertson, 6; Brian Necaie, 4; and Brad Fredericks, 2.

Brian Necaie led in rebounds with 8, and also is credited with 4 assists. Tripp Whavers had 2 steals.

Bay High will host Purvis

Friday night in the Tigerdome. The Tigers are 10-13 overall, and 7-4 in conference play.

The Tigers defeated Forrest County AHS Saturday night, 45-41.

"As a team, we shot very poorly from the field and free-throw line," said coach Mark Collins. "The only thing that kept us in the game was our defense, and not allowing our opponent more than one shot at the goal."

Leading scorer for the Tigers was Kevin Hodges with 12 points, followed by James Ricks with 11; Tripp Whavers, 8; Travis Collins, 6; Tristan Robertson, 5; and Russell Fairconnetue, 3.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Yes, Virginia,
there are trout

It's time to go fishin' y'all. I've found the trout and flounders after a week of hard searching.

This week was spent covering the coastal waters of Hancock County from Pearl River to the Harrison County line.

I started the search out with a fishin' buddy, Bill Dilligatti, who told me that "we had just gotta make-for sure" that we tried the fishin' in the Grand Plain Bayou area.

So, Bill hooked up his guaranteed fish catchin' outfit to his truck and we took off like a herd of turtles toward Ansley.

After crossing the "high rise" bridge, we launched his fish catchin' outfit at a friend's house, hooked up the "humming bird," pumped the gas bulb, turned on the ignition key and felt the two lungs of the engine come to life with a roar and a cloud of smoke.

Bill poured on the coals, pedal-to-the-metal style, on the 50-horsepower engine, and the little 16-foot skiff made a strong attempt to reach take-off speed in about two shakes of a turtle's tail.

I know we were not airborne, because whenever I would gather enough courage to raise my head from the bottom of the boat lone enough to look up, I could see water spray flying in all directions. By reasoning that you would not normally see water spray at 10,000 feet in the air, I concluded that the boat must have still been somewhere in proximity to the water, if not actually in the water.

After a short trip, a very short trip, we traveled to the junction of Grand Plains Bayou and Johns Bayou.

This is an ideal area for huge mouth bass and perch. There are grass beds everywhere you look. Tree branches and bushes hang into the water at numerous places along the banks, providing ideal hiding places for fish.

All in all, you would be hard pressed to find a more ideal spot for fishin'.

After about nine million casts in every direction, including some casts in the marsh and some casts after that most elusive of all fish, the "giant-spotted leaf-shaped tree fish," not one fish would take our baits.

Seeing as how the fish were not going to cooperate in this most perfect of fishin' areas, we started working our way back toward the less-than-perfect fishin' areas in the direction of the launch. All we managed to catch was one freshwater catfish.

Concluding that the fishin' was bad in this general area, we decided to pick up the boat and try again another day.

After helping Bill put the 16-foot rocket away, I worked my way down Beach Blvd. toward Cedar Point, as I was hearing rumors that some specks were being caught in the Cedar Point area.

I definitely confirmed that there were in fact some rumors, that someone heard from a friend of a friend, that on reliable word from his cousin's brother-in-law's son's nephew, that someone caught some trout in this area.

The only problem with the confirmation was that no one could tell me what year they heard these rumors.

On down the beach I went to check out the piers and get some more info. I was sure that there were fish somewhere.

I was starting to accept the utter desolation and depression that affect all turtles when they are deprived of fish, when all of a sudden, right in the area of the American Legion pier, I was overcome with joy as I beheld the object of my searching.

There they were, and they were beautiful — wonderful, sleek and powerful specks-flounders that ran over a pound.

My search had ended. I knew there had to be a place where someone could show me that fish were still in the Sound, and could be caught, and sure enough, here was the proof — right there in the ice at Big E Seafood.

This week's wonderful wise words: Have you checked the filter screen in your VRO unit lately?

Turtles aren't supposed to fly, turtle.

Bay hosts training session for police department dogs

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

Bay Catholic Elementary School student Billy Kenny lives near the Bay High School stadium. This past Monday, he saw a group of police officers training vicious-looking dogs on the stadium grounds. Billy was curious, but wary. He slowly edged closer and closer to the officers, until one of them noticed him and invited him over.

Harrison County Deputy Ray Miller introduced Billy to his K-9 partner Rambo. The dog seemed to transform itself magically from attack animal to overgrown puppy as he and Billy became friends.

According to Miller, this is because of the strict training that the law enforcement animals go through before they are allowed on the streets.

Once a month, K-9 officers from various Coast law enforcement agencies meet in Bay St. Louis to engage in inter-departmental training with their animals. None of the police or sheriff's departments have large enough K-9 units to effectively do all of their training by themselves, and these joint exercises benefit all of them.

The officers value their K-9 companions highly and develop close bonds with them. Gulfport Officer Will Platts even carries a photo of himself and K-9 Buck. "Your dog is your best partner—he'll never let you down," said Platts.

Biloxi Police Officer Rick Dawson said, "My wife complains that I pay more attention to my dog than I do to her." Harrison County Deputy Ray Miller chimed in, "It's easier to train your dog than your wife." Though comments like these are obviously made in jest, the deep bond between the men and their dogs is obvious.

Unlike firearms, the use of dogs is not legally considered to be deadly force and the policemen are able to use them to defuse many situations which might otherwise escalate.

Dawson's usual beat is the area of Biloxi's Main and Division streets, a notoriously high crime area. Dawson said that "out of 180 arrests, Rex has only bitten four suspects, and those incidents were found to be justifiable." He then added, "Word got around. You don't mess with 'Dog Man'."

The K-9s can be trained for a wide range of purposes. Will Platts' dog Buck, a Belgian Malinois, is a dual purpose animal. In addition to his patrol function, he serves as a narcotics K-9 as well. He has been trained to distinguish the smell of marijuana, heroin, hashish, cocaine and crack.

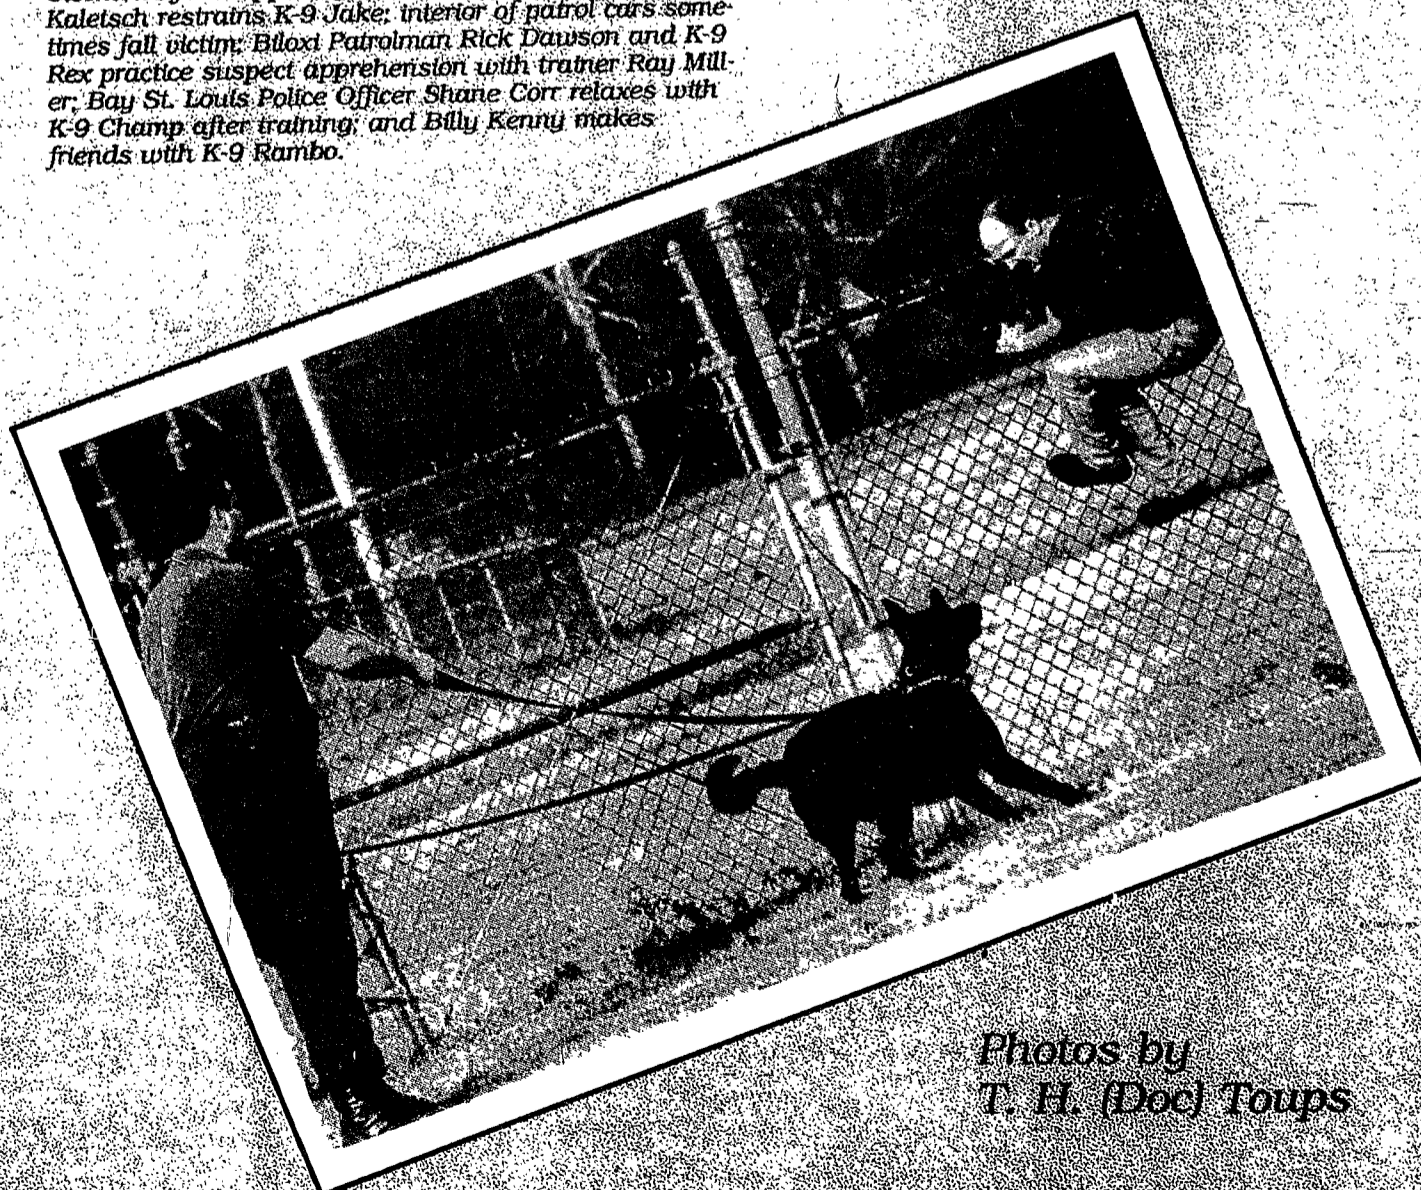

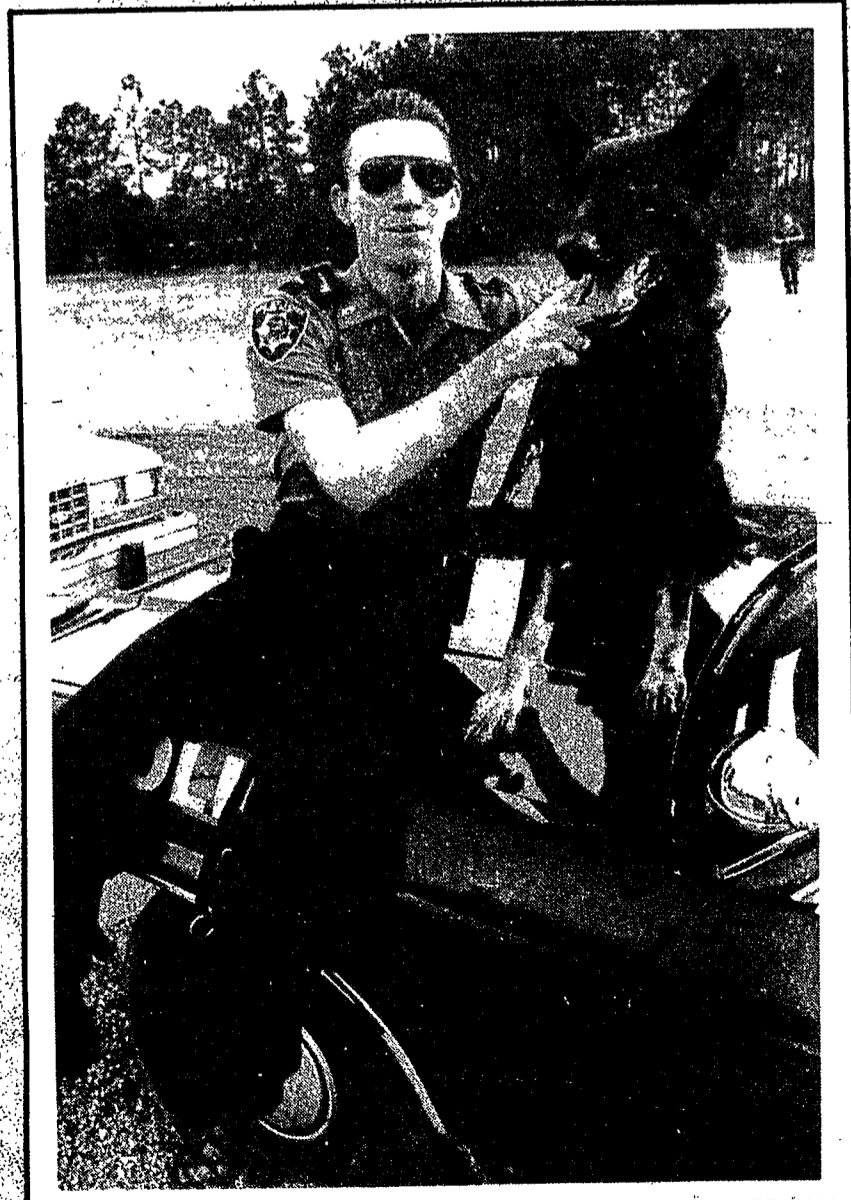

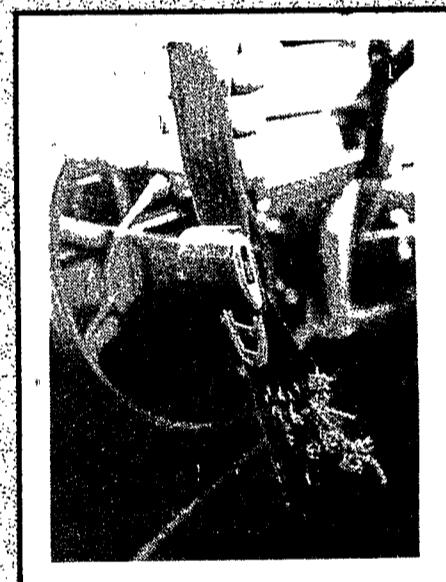

Bay St. Louis Police Officer Shane Corr and his K-9 Champ are a familiar sight, in this area. "They're like your children," Corr said of the animals. He explained that he has found Champ useful in suspect apprehension, especially inside dark buildings. K-9s, relying much more on their sense of smell than eyesight, can ferret out suspects no matter how well they may be hidden.

The officers spend a great deal of time teaching the animals when not to attack. This discipline is evident in the training exercises, when a single command from one of the policemen will cause the K-9s to immediately break off their training exercises.

All of the policemen agreed that crowd control represented one of the K-9s' biggest challenges. With Mardi Gras not far away, they emphasized that it is dangerous to tease or otherwise torment the animals. Though common sense would seem to indicate that it is patently foolish, the officers said that during parades, some people occasionally try to pull the dogs' tails, kick them, or otherwise inflict some pain. "These people get bit," said Dawson.

Clockwise from upper right, Harrison Co. Deputy Joey Kaletsch restrains K-9 Jake; interior of patrol cars sometimes fall victim; Biloxi Patrolman Rick Dawson and K-9 Rex practice suspect apprehension with trainer Ray Miller; Bay St. Louis Police Officer Shane Corr relaxes with K-9 Champ after training; and Billy Kenny makes friends with K-9 Rambo.

Students vie for math, science honors

Top high school science and mathematics students from the local area will be among those participating in the 18th annual Mississippi Science and Mathematics Tournament scheduled at Mississippi College today and Friday, Feb. 6 and 7.

The tournament, sponsored by the Mississippi College Department of Science and Mathematics, recognizes students and their high schools for outstanding achievement in the two fields of study.

This year's competition will include more than 1,700 students representing over 200 different public and private schools in two days of intense competition.

The following students will be participating:

St. Stanislaus
Ron Kayes, Martin Braud, Sam Simpson, Charles Merrigan, Mansell Bell, Wayne Murphy, Matt Brunner, Fred Asher and Michael Lee.

Hancock High School
Carva Latino, Natalie Abbott, Eric Necaise, William Miller, Vicky Israel, Kendall Mitchell, Victor Antonica and Loren Crow.

Our Lady Academy
Khuyen Tran, Jennifer Carter, Karen Kohl, Jessica Taylor,

Clarinda Alcaen, Mallory Mes-tayer, Kim Nguyen, Jennifer Heughan and Konnie Merrigan.

The tournament is not just an opportunity for both team and individual competition, but also offers approximately $95,000 in academic scholarships to Mississippi College.

Individual competition includes one-hour written exams in math, biology, chemistry and physics with each student allowed to compete in two of the four areas. First place winners receive $1,000 scholarships, second place winners receive a $500 scholarship, while third place winners receive a $400 scholarship and $400 scholarships are given the top ten percent in each division. These scholarships are renewable providing the student maintains a high academic average.

Team competition is divided into two divisions depending on the science and math curriculum offered by the individual schools. The four-member teams compete in a quiz type format where questions are flashed on the screen and quick calculations and responses are required. All calculations are done with pencil and paper.

Volunteers landscape at HHS

Students and community are demonstrating pride in Hancock High School.

The Beta Club, sponsored by Patricia Dedaux, the junior high Beta Club, sponsored by Barbara Ferguson, and the varsity cheerleaders, sponsored by Kay Lovelace, joined forces to plant 20 live oak trees donated by Sam Ladner of the Dedaux community. Students, parents, faculty members and administrators planted the trees Saturday, Jan. 24.

Through an environmental project, sponsored by Wal-Mart, $250 was donated to Hancock High to cover the cost of top soil needed to plant the trees.

"The camaraderie demonstrated between Hancock High School, its students and the community has instilled in each and every one of us a true sense of pride and spirit of cooperation that, we hope, will continue to strengthen and grow for many years to come," said superintendent Myrna Bourgeois.

Blue Cross art contest focuses on the future

In the next few months, hundreds of Mississippi students of all ages will dust off their crayons, fine-tune their imaginations and create masterpieces. The assignment: use art to illustrate the future based on how we treat the environment today.

The reward: certificates and cash scholarships up to $500. "Color the Future," the theme of the 14th Annual Design For Good Health Art Contest sponsored by Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi, is designed to help children understand that they play a role in shaping the environment of tomorrow.

Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Mississippi has invited all students in grades 1-12 to enter the competition.

After the March 20 deadline, an independent panel of art professionals will select the top three statewide winners in four grade divisions based on originality, appropriateness to the theme and artistic ability.

Blue Cross will award statewide winners in three grade divisions with cash scholarships of $200 for first place, $150 for second and $100 for third. In the fourth division, grades 10-12, the winners will receive cash scholarships of $500 for first place, $400 for second and $300 for third.

Students interested in entering the contest should contact their school art teacher or principal.

St. Stanislaus students view NAVOCEANO Supercomputer Center

The future met the present when 27 eighth grade students from St. Stanislaus visited the Naval Oceanographic Office's Supercomputer Center at Stennis Space Center January 28.

Young eyes grew large when introduced to the Navy's most powerful computing system and one of the most powerful systems in the world—the Cray Y-MP8/8128 or the Primary Oceanographic Prediction System, POPS as it is called.

Its eight processors, working individually or collectively on a single computation, share a 128 million word memory. At peak operating speed, the system is capable of achieving 2.67 billion floating point operations per second. As an example, the system is capable of going through the entire multiplication tables 10.8 million times per second.

Oceanography has developed from simple observations of easily measured features to highly technical descriptions and predictions of complex ocean phenomena. Oceanography is multi-disciplinary, involving acoustics, chemistry, engineering, geology, geophysics, hydrography, and meteorology. The POPS will enable NAVOCEANO and the Navy to do their jobs better and faster.

"NAVOCEANO hopes to see many of these young people become employees in the future handling these many disciplines and running POPS," said public affairs officer L. W. Alston Jr.

JERRY'S TIPS:

To beat crabgrass, kill the seed before it germinates. In most parts of the country, this should be done in early February or March. Use a dry or liquid pre-emergence killer. Look for all my tips and tricks in the 8 Garden Line® series books, available for 1.75 each at your local Kmart.
